1,400,000 FRENCHMEN KILLED,
800,000 MAINED IN WAR

Paris, May 20.—What is perhaps the first concise and comprehensive statement of France's war losses has just been made by Capt. Andre Tardieu, former French High Commissioner in the United States, in describing what he calls the "balance sheet" of France. Tardieu states that during the five years of the war 8,000,000 men were mobilized, of whom 1,400,000 were killed, 800,000 maimed and 300,000 wounded. France lost 57 per cent of her men under 32 years of age.

Incident That Suggests Much

Nobody in St. Louis exclaimed "Hayseed" when a Missouri farmer dropped in here by airplane last week, making a flight of 160 miles at the rate of 2 miles a minute. "Old Dobbin" has been modernized beyond the dreams of speed-record breakers. People who are extra particular about eggs have a prospect of getting them from afar while their hens are cackling over their latest production. But numerous points of interest are connected with this unexpected occurrence. The flying farmer lives in Scott County, in Southeast Missouri, sometimes in former years quaintly called Swampast Missouri on account of its large area of wet lands. But when drained this land is wonderfully fertile without calling for other fertilizers than those so bountifully and conveniently stored up by nature. Southeast Missouri has become famous for its liberal and successful drainage enterprises. Let its farmers fly high. They have given the world a most valuable hint in agriculture, and now another in aviation.

Along the Mississippi and its ten thousand miles of navigable tributaries are millions of acres of wet lands. The opportunities are vast for profitable farming. No isolation will exist on these farms. They can count on airplanes as well as automobiles, with steamboats at hand for bulky freight. Do the railroads realize that new competitors are springing up?—Globe Democrat.

State Sunday School Conventions this year are under a new plan. This to be the first time three conventions are to be held in different parts of the State. Under the old plan one convention covering the whole State was held in one place. One of the conventions this year will be held in Cape Girardeau, May 31-June 2, one in Aurora and one in Hannibal. This is the first time such a convention has been held in this part of the State and it is expected that there will be about 1000 delegates in attendance, representing Presbyterian, Baptist, Christian, Centenary Methodist, Methodist Episcopal, Evangelical, Lutheran, Episcopal, Maple Avenue Methodist Sunday Schools.

It is understood that H. L. Jones, city superintendent of schools, is planning to take the question of an organization such as is proposed up with other city superintendents in the district, and if they approve of the proposal, the organization of a track meet league would be perfected this

FOR WOMEN, SAYS SPEAKER

New York, May 19.—Mrs. Otto Wittpenn, member of the Democratic National Executive Committee, represented the Democratic party at the "Victory Conference" of the New Jersey suffrage party, held in the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark. In the course of her speech, Mrs. Wittpenn said:

"In our form of government parties are still necessary, although they are becoming less so. The experience of the Progressive party shows that a third party is not practical. We must therefore choose between the Republican or Democratic parties. In this we are not relinquishing our independence of choice, which may be expressed in the primaries.

"We are determined to bring our political activities by dropping personalities, for we know that there are good and bad men in both parties. The difference between the parties is more fundamental and permanent than personality. It goes back to the two types of mind, the conservative and the liberal. The Republican party is strong in organization. Organization needs brains, money and a motive for untiring energy and persistent work. We acknowledge that there are more college bred men and women of leisure in the Republican party. We acknowledge that it contains richer individuals and corporations. We recognize that perfect organization needs cash. It seems fair to look for the motive behind the energy and work which have built up and are constantly upholding the Republican party. Why do the richest classes and corporations support the Republican party? It is evident that it is primarily the party of property, although Governor Stokes has just announced by socialistic and communistic that it is danger of being Bryan compromise.

"The Democratic party is a party of agitation, a party of protest, having had its birth in the protest of Thomas Jefferson against the iron rule of the Federalists. The election of Cleveland and Wilson both demonstrate this point. The protests of our party have invariably been, not for material gain, but for the preservation of the human element and of personal rights as against property rights. The Democratic party endeavors to work out the many perplexing problems of government by faith in the growth of the people, learning from their own experiences, faults and blunders.

"The Democratic party does not believe in the government of the many through the brain of a few. It is largely composed of persons who need the protection of the government as expressed in laws, because of wealth or education. It is primarily a party of the poor, whose poverty exposes them to exploitation.

"The Democratic party is a party of the common people. It does not take a prophet to foresee that the question which in the future will daily become more and more acute are those of the relations between the employer and the worker, those which involve the care and protection of women and children in their work and their health. We claim that the Democratic party understands such problems best because they are a part of the daily life of those who compose it.

"The goal of all suffragists is the same, 'that the country we love should be a better, safer, cleaner place for our children and for the helpless.' Which party is most likely to make this object their chief aim and concern and where can women help most to make these ideals real?

Lodge in 1918 And Now.

Senator Lodge, leader of the Senate majority now trying to put through the so-called separate peace resolution in the Senate, is the same Senator Lodge who, in an article in The Forum magazine in December, 1918, said it would be a "crime" to negotiate a separate peace. He wrote then:

"The President who delivered the war message and the Congress who voted for war would be guilty of the blackest crime if they were willing to make peace on the status quo ante bellum, and re-create the situation which existed before the war. If we send our armies and our young men abroad to be killed and wounded in Northern France and Flanders with no result but this, our entrance into the war with such an intention was a crime which nothing can justify. The intent of Congress and the intent of the President was that there could be no peace until we could create a situation where no such war as this could recur. We cannot make peace except with our Allies. It would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us also if we undertook to make a separate peace."

There is no stronger argument against the Knox-Porter resolution than Senator Lodge's own.

The President's Opportunity.

That the House of Representatives will acquiesce in the Knox separate peace resolution may be taken for granted. That President Wilson will veto it may also be taken for granted. No other course is open to him.

The President, however, need not waste much time and attention on the resolution itself. The whole procedure is fantastic and unprecedented and at variance with the Constitution itself. The moral issue that is involved was clearly defined by Senator Lodge himself when he said, in December, 1916, that "it would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us if we undertook to make a separate peace." The fact that Senator Lodge has since joined the elements of dishonor and ruin in order to manufacture a partisan issue against the President does not lessen the impressiveness of his warning.

President Wilson will throw the Knox resolution into the waste basket, where it belongs, but in adopting it and in making it a party policy, the Republicans will have given him an opportunity to restate the case for the treaty which he cannot afford to neglect.

His last word on the subject, his telegram to the Oregon Democrats, is far from satisfactory. In that message the President declared it imperative that the Democratic party should "endorse and support the Versailles treaty and condemn the Lodge reservations as utterly inconsistent with the nation's honor and destructive of the world leadership which it has established, and which all the free peoples of the earth, including the great Powers themselves had shown themselves ready to welcome."

The President's words have been subjected to various interpretations. They have been construed as a demand that the Democratic party stand by the treaty without any reservations whatever and they have been interpreted as expression of unqualified opposition only to the Lodge reservations in their present form. Senator Hitchcock takes the latter view, but that is merely the expression of a personal opinion.

Although the President has repeatedly said that he did not object to reservations that did not weaken the covenant, he has never defined in precise terms the scope of such reservations. He is now in a position to do it.

The Senate has shown that it could not command the necessary two-thirds vote for the treaty with the Lodge reservations and that Senator Lodge himself could not hold his party in line on any resolution of ratification. The Knox separate peace resolution is so plainly a partisan maneuver that it cannot be taken seriously by anybody. It is now time for the President to say what he would regard as acceptable in the way of reservations—in short, to open the way to an honorable compromise, if there is any disposition on the part of the Republican Senators to compromise. If there is not, he should force them to admit it.

He cannot afford to give them the chance to shift upon his shoulders the blame for the complete failure of the party. He must make it plain to the country that he has exhausted all his resources in the attempt to arrive at an agreement which will leave the covenant essentially intact, but which at the same time will satisfy any legitimate demand for reservations that simply clarify the duties and responsibilities of the United States in the League of Nations.—Post-Dispatch.

House Building in China

All lumber for building in China is bought in the log. As soon as the logs begin to arrive the contractor tackles them with the sawyers. These men are paid piece rates which average about three cash or one-tenth of a cent per square foot of surface sawed. They average a better wage than a carpenter, getting about 10 cents a day for the carpenter. At this rate they are cheaper than any steam saw mill that can operate in China. In fact, the only reason a saw mill can operate in China at all is because it can produce quickly and with a more even thickness than the native sawyers. The necessary doors, frames and window sashes are all made by hand. Three Chinese carpenters at 8 cents a day with their native tools can accomplish about the same work done by one American carpenter with all equipment. The work is well done if well supervised. The American carpenter has all his wood surfaced, so the Chinese carpenter is at a disadvantage. In comparison, I should say that about five Chinese carpenters at 8 cents a day each are necessary to do the work of an American carpenter who receives $6 a day and has all his wood prepared for him.—H. K. Richardson in Asia.

Going Bail For Johnson.

Hiram Johnson is the only Republican contender for the presidential nomination who is suspected of a purpose to bolt if conditions at Chicago in June do not prove agreeable to him.

One reason why the Senator is looked upon in this curious way is that he has a record. In 1912 he not only bolted but he accepted a nomination for Vice President from a party which denounced Republicans as "tools of corrupt interests enthroned in invisible government" who had "deliberately betrayed the trust" of the people. Another reason is found in the fact that some of his most ardent supporters, like Senator Borah and William R. Hearst, do not hesitate to suggest some such stratagem in this year of grace.

It will pain Americans who admire independence in politics, therefore, to learn that Mr. Johnson's Eastern managers have announced their willingness to go bail for him. The guarantee is regularity. He is a thick-and-thin party man. The hosts at the national convention may slay him, but he will applaud them with his last breath. He is making all this trouble for the organization because he loves it, and even in the face of ingratitude he will remain true.

This is fine from a partisan point of view, but where does it leave the Senator? If he can convince his fellow Republicans that he is as dependable as Gen. Wood, Senator Harding or Gov. Lowden, he will deprive the managers of their strongest incentive to deal generously with him. A Hiram Johnson who stands without hitching is not greatly to be greatly to be feared by the standpatters, with whom that is a habit.—Post-Dispatch.

The Labor Problem.

We believe that any man who is willing to work has a right to a steady job, fair hours and a living wage. We believe that strikes are not a disease, but a symptom of disease; and we believe that the time to observe and improve the relations between employer and worker is not while strikes are going on, but in the periods between them. We believe that nothing is gained by imagining that radicalism, under any of its names, is the cause of industrial unrest. It is not a cause, but an effect. The recent railroad yard men's strike showed what damage could be done to personal freedom and public safety by a group of workmen who tried to paralyze the railroads of America.

We may expect, unless all Americans unite to find and apply the remedy, many other disturbances. The entire public depends on the service, for example, of railroad workers, of miners, of policemen, of mail carriers and of teachers. American democracy was intended to remove classes, not to create them and set them in opposition to each other. To each political party, to every candidate for office, to the men and women who support their candidacies, the labor question now presents itself as one that can no longer be twisted into any shape dictated by party or local expediency. The recent railroad yard men's strike showed what damage could be done to personal freedom and public safety by a group of workmen who tried to paralyze the railroads of America.

The Senate has shown that it could not command the necessary two-thirds vote for the treaty with the Lodge reservations and that Senator Lodge himself could not hold his party in line on any resolution of ratification. The Knox separate peace resolution is so plainly a partisan maneuver that it cannot be taken seriously by anybody. A great and successful farmer who had been farming for seventy years, when asked what was the greatest farming lesson he had learned, replied: "The lesson that good farming pays better than any other business in the world; pays not only in money, but in health and contentment of mind. It is one business in which a man can live the Golden Rule every day, in all his dealings; and the longer he lives the more his satisfaction with it grows; and at the sunset of life he can look back over the years without a single regret, knowing that they have been well spent and that he has contributed his best to the sum of human happiness and lived closest to the Scriptural injunction as to how a man should live."—The Oregon (Illinois) Republican.

WHY THE PREACHER IS "MEAT" FOR "CON" MEN

Members of His Flock Are Prone to Follow His Leadership in Financial Investments.

"Sell some to a preacher first."

Just why this should be heavily underscored as one of the most important steps in the campaign of the young stock salesman, known as a "green goods man," will not be immediately apparent to the uninitiated.

Is not the minister one of the most poorly paid of our quasi-public servants? Has he not, therefore, but little money to invest?

"Quite so," would say the handbook on "How to Get Rich on Phony Stock," were not this line of instruction always dispensed verbally instead of by printed page.

"Quite so. The preacher gets a little pay, and has still less to invest. Nevertheless, sell him some, even if only a few shares."

"But why, Oh Wise Instructor, should I waste time selling these few shares when I might be selling many?"

"Because forsaken, Oh Earnest Pupil, you will sell many a big lot by being able to tell people that their preacher has bought a few."

"But why should people care what stock their preacher has bought? His studies are all of the spiritual, his activities in promoting the moral. Why should anyone imagine that his minister is judge of an investment?"

"They should not, but they do. Oh Pupil. Tell a man to ask his garage man what is the matter with his car and he will do so after he has made it worse by his own tinkering. Tell a man to get a plumber to fix his drains, and he will do so."

Tell a man to ask a banker whether a stock is sound, and he will not; no, not even after he has been many times stung. But tell him that his preacher has bought your stock and he will do likewise."

That this old, old formula of the "green goods man," the "confidence man," and the "phony stock salesman" is still producing satisfactory results is apparent from the recent appearance in a religious organ of the alleged experience of a minister who acquired himself an automobile and a comfortable capital reserve by "stock investments."

One single line in the alleged experience of the minister noted was enough to exhibit the cloven hoof. "I could not even make payments on the Liberty Bonds for which I subscribed." This is the most overworked part of the vocabulary of the worthless stock specialist. "Don't buy Liberty Bonds," he says. "They pay you only 4½ per cent. My securities will pay you 500 per cent." The only difference between this statement and the facts being that the Liberty Bonds will return you exactly 100 cents of value when the time comes for the government to redeem them, while the promoter's offerings most likely will represent 100 per cent loss long before that time.

For the minister, as for the professional man in other lines and the businessman whose own organization requires all his time to supervise, there is but one investment which does not demand extensive investigation before purchase.

This is the government bond, whose security is undoubtedly, whose interest return is certain, and which can always be converted instantly into cash.

PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN

Works Well in Buying United States Treasury Savings Certificates.

The partial payment plan of buying Treasury Savings Certificates in St. Louis is catching on quickly. A few days ago J. H. Anderson, director of the Metropolitan Department, attended a noonday meeting of the employees of the D'Arcy Advertising Company, and made a brief talk. Seven of the employees subscribed for bonds, totaling $900.

They agreed to pay $5 per month on the certificates, the seven clerks buying through five different banks.

The contract is that they pay the amount the certificates are worth on the month of final payment, at which time the bank will turn over the certificate and open a savings account in the bank with a credit of one dollar.

WILTON'S GOOD RECORD.

New Hampshire Town Makes Big Showing in Government Securities.

Wilton, New Hampshire, has hung up a record for community Thrift in the last seven months which sets a mark for every larger town and city in the United States to work for. Wilton has 1,490 inhabitants, but the postmaster of the town has sold government savings certificates in excess of $8,000, maturity value, in that time. The men, women and children placed $2,945.83 of their money in War Savings Stamps and $7,772.83 in Treasury Savings Certificates. This is an average of $1.98 for each inhabitant in W. S. S. and $3.24 in Treasury Savings Certificates, or a grand average of $5.22 per capita. The inhabitants of the town expect to continue that ratio of investment throughout this year.

Some men still wait for their sailing ship to come in; others prepare, by steady saving and safe investment in Government Savings Securities, a steamship which will get back on time.

An Open Shop Association has been formed by 250 business firms of Joplin, for the purpose of improving labor conditions and preventing strikes, lockouts, boycotts and other labor troubles. The plan is to pay fair wages and provide good working conditions, but to refuse to deal with union business agents and strike agitators.

In Kansas City the high cost of union business agents is being complained of by some of the most aggressive union workers. Following the granting of increased wages in all the building crafts on May 1st, it developed that business agents are being allowed liberal toll on the increase. The business agent for the building laborers has been granted a weekly salary of $50.00, with a motor car and its upkeep supplied free. The hoisting engineers' business agent, with car and upkeep also supplied, is to have $65.00 a week, while the agent of the Building Trades Council is to get his car and $75 a week.

Well-Bred Hogs Make Gains Rapidly

That blood will tell in hog feeding has been established to the satisfaction of W. H. Harper, Mississippi County. Under the direction of W. H. Rusk of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, Mr. Harper has been conducting a hog feeding experiment to determine the results of feeding various grades of hogs. He used three lots: One of scrubs, one of half breeding, and one of pure breeding. The experiment, after running about seventy days, showed striking results. The lot of purebreds weighed about three hundred pounds, the halfbred lot about two hundred and thirty five pounds, and the scrubs about one hundred and sixty pounds. These lots had all had the same care and treatment. Another experiment will be begun soon and records kept to furnish definite information.

Miss Marjorie Smith returned Sunday from an extended visit in Kansas City and St. Louis.

Miss Jane Wells departed Saturday for her home in Marble Hill. Miss Wells expected to teach next year in the West.

Miss Dolores O'Bryan, daughter of Mrs. Dixie O'Bryan, was married recently in Roy, New Mexico, to Earl McMinnimy, a prominent business man of that city. Miss O'Bryan is a Charleston girl, who served overseas as a Red Cross nurse, she has visited frequently in this city. Mr. McMinnimy is a former service man and the marriage is the culmination of a romance that began in Sunny France.

MISSOURI AMONG STATES SUFFERING HEAVY IN WAR

St. Louis, May 21.—Men from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, comprising District No. 9 of the United States Public Health Service, suffered 10 per cent of the 200,000 casualties in the army section of the A. E. F., and including the men of the Marine Corps and navy from this district there were about 35,000 casualties during the war among men of these four states. This was the statement of Major L. H. Bahrenberg before the members' conference luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at the American Annex.

Maj. Bahrenberg is in charge of the two hospitals of the Public Health Service in St. Louis. He advocated making this city the chief hospital center of his service in this district by building a large modern hospital, doing away with the old Marine Hospital and returning the one at 5800 Arsenal street to the city for its original purpose as an infirmary. There are 30 admissions a day to the two hospitals, he said, and the one on Arsenal street has an average of 475 patients.

He said St. Louis would make as good place as any in several Western states for a tuberculosis hospital for most cases.

Mr. and Mrs. Nath Story of Bragg City are visiting Mrs. Story's mother, Mrs. Martha Fisher.

Miss Virgie Barnett, who attended Sikeston High School this year, returned Monday to her home in Princeton, Kentucky.

Sam Phillips of Blytheville, Ark., is in this city for a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Jesse Kimes, and sister, Mrs. Mary Ellsworth.

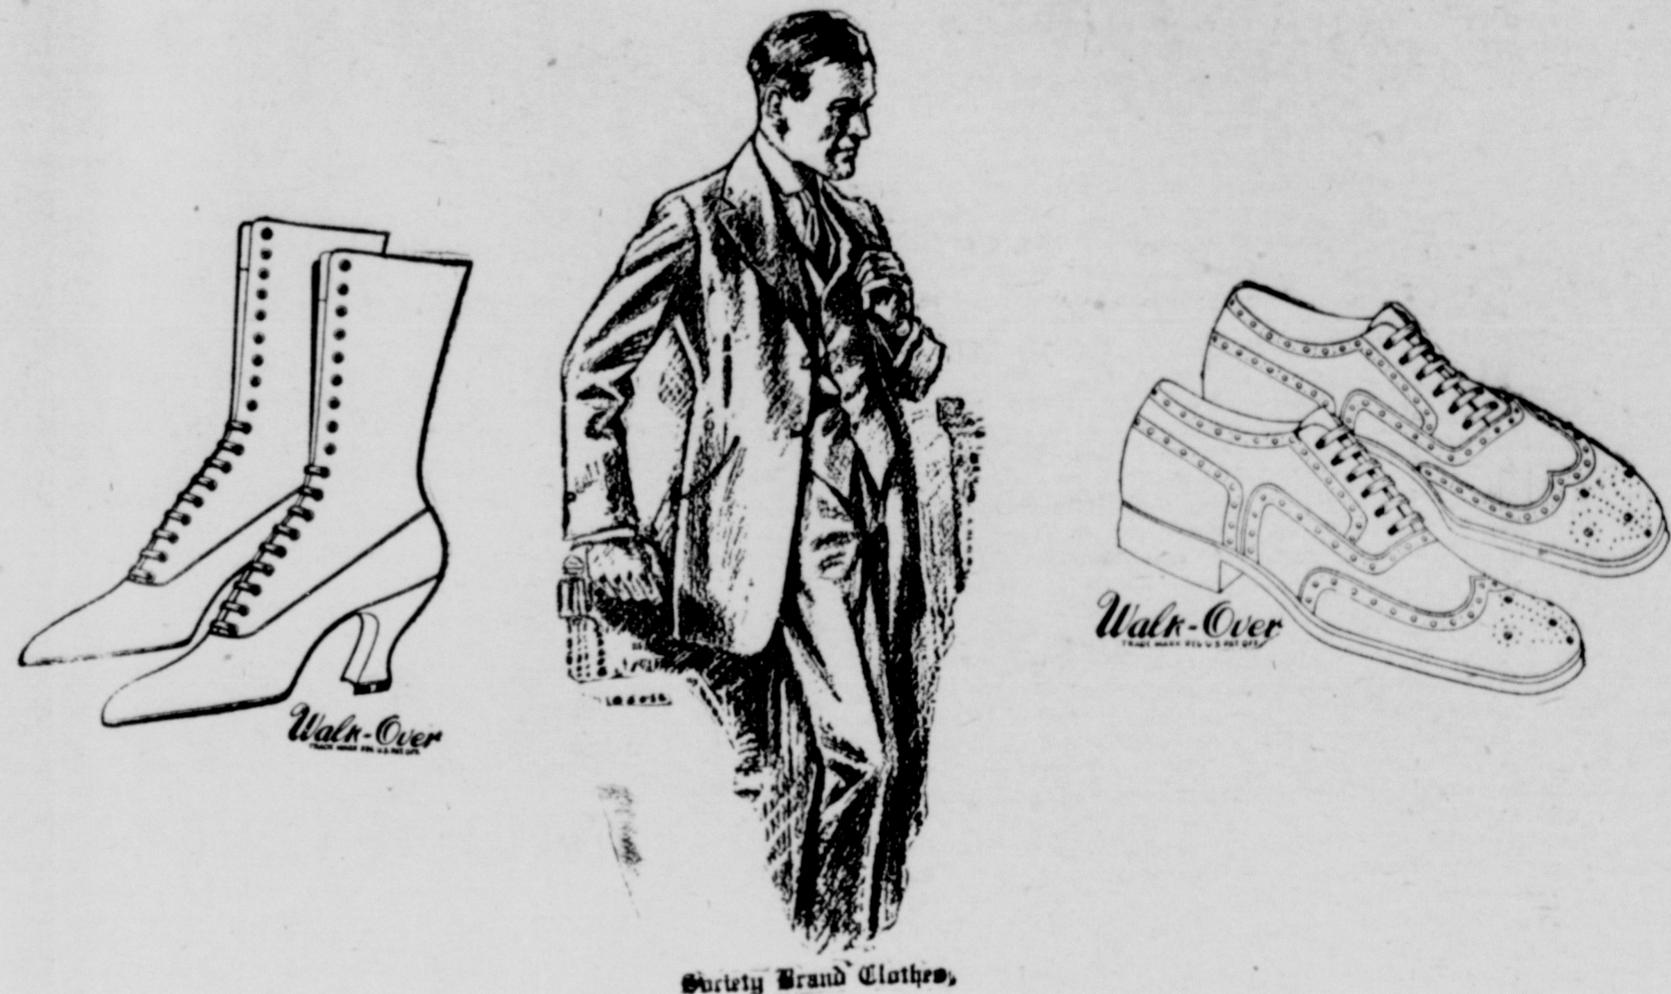

Mrs. Bettie Matthews and Miss Marie DeGuire returned Monday from a short visit in Poplar Bluff. Two of Mrs. Matthews' small grandchildren accompanied them home.

Dr. A. H. Barnes was in Benton Friday night to assist in the organization of a Wesley Bible Class. The Sikeston Orchestra furnished the musical part of the evening's program.

HOW WOULD THIS
SUIT SIKESTONIANS

The formation of a Southeast Missouri track meet association, composed of representatives of all eligible high schools in this district, similar to the football organization, is proposed by the sportsmen of this city, following the general dissatisfaction of the way in which the recent Southeast Missouri meet at Cape Girardeau was handled. Whether the organization as advocated will be formed rests largely with the attitude which other schools in the district take, but it is believed that Sikeston, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Caruthersville, Kennett and other cities can be counted on such an organization.

The plan as presented has the approval of local business men, and embodies the proposal, following the formation of an organization, that the meets of the association would be divided up, being held one year in Charleston, the next in Sikeston and so on, instead of being held in one place each year, as at present.

There is absolutely no reason why the high schools of Southeast Missouri should continue to put up with the manner in which Cape Girardeau is handling the Southeast Missouri meet, one prominent local businessman told the Enterprise-Courier, in discussing the proposed track league. "The meets have been held there for years, but in spite of this fact, the Normal authorities, under whose auspices the meet have occurred, have made no efforts to improve their track facilities, not even providing a cinder track for the events. The Cape Girardeau business men, it seems to me, are also due for criticism, as I dare say that no one store in the city closed up on account of the meet, and the city of Cape Girardeau, outside of the school pupils, did not have a dozen representatives on the grounds.

"Charleston, Sikeston and other towns which participate in the track meet sends dozens of representatives to the Cape each year, spending hundreds of dollars with the hotels and business houses, and if this fact is appreciated by the Cape Girardeau people, they have thus far failed to show it in any substantial manner.

"I would favor the formation of a track meet association of our own with a meet one year in this city, the next year perhaps in Sikeston, the next in Poplar Bluff and so on so that each town would be enabled to enjoy some of the business incidents to the meet. Speaking for the merchants of Charleston, I am certain that I can guarantee that every business house in this city would close up the day that meet is held here, and that the people of the city will turn out en masse to attend the event, according to a much better patronage than has ever been given the Cape Girardeau meet by the people of this city."

It is understood that H. L. Jones, city superintendent of schools, is planning to take the question of an organization such as is proposed up with other city superintendents in the district, and if they approve of the proposal, the organization of a track meet league would be perfected this spring, or as soon as the schools reconvene in the fall.—Charleston Enterprise-Courier.

1,400,000 FRENCHMEN KILLED,
800,000 MAINED IN WAR

Paris, May 20.—What is perhaps the first concise and comprehensive statement of France's war losses has just been made by Capt. Andre Tardieu, former French High Commissioner in the United States, in describing what he calls the "balance sheet" of France. Tardieu states that during the five years of the war 8,000,000 men were mobilized, of whom 1,400,000 were killed, 800,000 maimed and 300,000 wounded. France lost 57 per cent of her men under 32 years of age.

Incident That Suggests Much

Nobody in St. Louis exclaimed "Hayseed" when a Missouri farmer dropped in here by airplane last week, making a flight of 160 miles at the rate of 2 miles a minute. "Old Dobbin" has been modernized beyond the dreams of speed-record breakers. People who are extra particular about eggs have a prospect of getting them from afar while their hens are cackling over their latest production. But numerous points of interest are connected with this unexpected occurrence. The flying farmer lives in Scott County, in Southeast Missouri, sometimes in former years quaintly called Swampast Missouri on account of its large area of wet lands. But when drained this land is wonderfully fertile without calling for other fertilizers than those so bountifully and conveniently stored up by nature. Southeast Missouri has become famous for its liberal and successful drainage enterprises. Let its farmers fly high. They have given the world a most valuable hint in agriculture, and now another in aviation.

Along the Mississippi and its ten thousand miles of navigable tributaries are millions of acres of wet lands. The opportunities are vast for profitable farming. No isolation will exist on these farms. They can count on airplanes as well as automobiles, with steamboats at hand for bulky freight. Do the railroads realize that new competitors are springing up?—Globe Democrat.

State Sunday School Conventions this year are under a new plan. This will be the first time three conventions are to be held in different parts of the State. Under the old plan one convention covering the whole State was held in one place. One of the conventions this year will be held in Cape Girardeau, May 31-June 2, one in Aurora and one in Hannibal. This is the first time such a convention has been held in this part of the State and it is expected that there will be about 1000 delegates in attendance, representing Presbyterian, Baptist, Christian, Centenary Methodist, Methodist Episcopal, Evangelical, Lutheran, Episcopal, Maple Avenue Methodist Sunday Schools.

JUNIOR RECITAL ON WEDNESDAY AT 3:15

Wednesday afternoon, May 26, at 3:15 the junior pupils of Miss Ruth Crowe will be heard in recital, at the Methodist Church. No admission will be charged and a most cordial invitation is extended to every one to attend.

Dr. G. W. Grinstead of Cairo has been elected president of the Illinois State Medical Association.

Miss Mary Watts of West Plains arrived Friday for a visit with her sister, Miss Jennie Watts. During the rush of Drummers' Week, Miss Watts will assist Mrs. Gertrude Lee in her shop 120 West Malone Ave.

Because of a mistake in dates the picture "The Jubilo," which was to have been shown Friday night at the Methodist Church, did not arrive until Monday and will be shown on the screen at the Church Tuesday night. Everyone is invited to see it.

Starting next Thursday morning and continuing until Saturday night, Sikeston will entertain the Southeast Missouri Drummers Association and it is expected and hoped that this meeting will be the biggest ever. Sikeston must maintain its reputation as a live town. Give our visitors the glad hand and make them feel at home. The town is to be gaily bedecked in red and green, the colors of the Association. Let all business houses use these colors profusely in their decorations. It is to be a gala occasion. Let's make this meeting one to be remembered for years to come.

DERRIS, THE DRUGGIST
SIKESTON, MO.CLOSING EXERCISES OF SIKESTON HIGH

Thirty young girls and boys, the 1920 Seniors of Sikeston High School, received their diplomas last Thursday evening at the Methodist Church in the presence of a large audience. This class is the largest ever graduated from the Sikeston High School and ranks equally with the best of the school's history. This work has been excellent throughout.

Mr. Thomas closed his talk with a tribute to the senior class. It has the honor of being the largest in the history of the school, a class of fine spirit and attainment. Lewis Emory Baker, valedictorian, Rosa Moser, and Melvin Bowman were announced as honor graduates.

At the Senior banquet, served after the Commencement exercises in the dining room of the Marshall Hotel, covers were laid for the thirty members of the class, Prof. and Mrs. M. C. Thomas, the High School faculty, and Dr. Holt. The occasion was a most delightful event.

The menu:

Music was furnished by Misses Ruth Crowe, Helen Welsh, Helen Kready, Mary Blanton, Addie Dover and Henry Hunter Skilman. Reginald Potashnick, president of the class, acted as toastmaster. The responses by Miss Corinne McGee, Dallas Beauchamp, Lewis Emory Baker, Prof. Miles C. Thomas were excellent. A prophecy by Paul Denmann and talk by Miss Maude Phillips and Dr. Holt were especially good.

The class resolved to meet again, four years from the coming July 4th, for another grand and glorious celebration.

Equipment has been added to the Home Economics department, the Science department, and the library. Playground apparatus has been bought for the elementary school. During the last vacation the north building of the elementary school was painted throughout.

The school children of Sikeston are to be congratulated upon the fine spirit which was manifested when the patrons gladly voted the increased levy recommended by the Board of Education. Next year our district will spend about forty-four dollars per pupil enrolled. Even then we shall be handicapped when competing with other states such as California which spends seventy-five dollars per pupil and Montana with eighty.

The past year has been one of unrest in every condition of life. Low salaries and scarcity of teachers have caused a shifting of teachers on a scale formerly unknown. In the loss of some good instructors we are feeling the effect of a nation-wide disturbance. Though our salary schedule is as good as in most schools of this state, with the exception of that offered by cities and suburban towns, the positions open in these larger places are numerous enough to claim some of our teachers, who have almost all other points in Iowa.

Ernest Arterburn was a business visitor in Bloomfield Friday.

Mrs. J. N. Sheppard visited Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond A. Moll, near Morehouse.

Mrs. A. H. Barnes accompanied by her small daughter, Betty, and her mother, Mrs. Emily Kerr, left Friday afternoon for an extended visit in Victor, West Liberty and various other points in Iowa.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY BEST FOR WOMEN, SAYS SPEAKER

New York, May 19.—Mrs. Otto Wittpenn, member of the Democratic National Executive Committee, represented the Democratic party at the "Victory Conference" of the New Jersey suffrage party, held in the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark. In the course of her speech, Mrs. Wittpenn said:

"In our form of government parties are still necessary, although they are becoming less so. The experience of the Progressive party shows that a third party is not practical. We must therefore choose between the Republican or Democratic parties. In this we are not relinquishing our independence of choice, which may be expressed in the primaries.

"We are determined to bring our political activities by dropping personalities, for we know that there are good and bad men in both parties. The difference between the parties is more fundamental and permanent than personality. It goes back to the two types of mind, the conservative and the liberal. The Republican party is strong on organization. Organization needs brains, money and a motive for untiring energy and persistent work. We acknowledge that there are more college bred men and women of leisure in the Republican party.

We acknowledge that it contains richer individuals and corporations. We recognize that perfect organization needs cash. It seems fair to look for the motive behind the energy and work which have built up and are constantly upholding the Republican party. Why do the richest classes and corporations support the Republican party? It is evident that it is primarily the party of property, although Governor Stokes has just anized by socialistic and communistic that it is danger of being Bryan compromise.

"The Democratic party is a party of agitation, a party of protest, having had its birth in the protest of Thomas Jefferson against the iron rule of the Federalists. The election of Cleveland and Wilson both demonstrate this point. The protests of our party have invariably been, not for material gain, but for the preservation of the human element and of personal rights as against property rights. The Democratic party endeavors to work out the many perplexing problems of government by faith in the growth of the people, learning from their own experiences, faults and blunders.

"The Democratic party does not believe in the government of the many through the brain of a few. It is largely composed of persons who need the protection of the government as expressed in laws, because of wealth or education. It is primarily a party of the poor, whose poverty exposes them to exploitation.

"The Democratic party is a party of the common people. It does not take a prophet to foresee that the question which in the future will daily become more and more acute are those of the relations between the employer and the worker, those which involve the care and protection of women and children in their work and their health. We claim that the Democratic party understands such problems best because they are a part of the daily life of those who compose it.

"The goal of all suffragists is the same, 'that the country we love should be a better, safer, cleaner place for our children and for the helpless.' Which party is most likely to make this object their chief aim and concern and where can women help most to make these ideals realities?

Lodge in 1918 And Now.
"We believe that the Democratic party is offering you today the most pliable and the most sympathetic instrument to turn our dreams into realities, and there you may be sure of the warmest welcome."

Senator Lodge, leader of the Senate majority now trying to put through the so-called separate peace resolution in the Senate, is the same Senator Lodge who, in an article in The Forum magazine in December, 1918, said it would be a "crime" to negotiate a separate peace. He wrote then:

"The President who delivered the war message and the Congress who voted for war would be guilty of the blackest crime if they were willing to make peace on the status quo ante bellum, and re-create the situation which existed before the war. If we send our armies and our young men abroad to be killed and wounded in Northern France and Flanders with no result but this, our entrance into the war with such an intention was a crime which nothing can justify. The intent of Congress and the intent of the President was that there could be no peace until we could create a situation where no such war as this could recur. We cannot make peace except with our Allies. It would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us also if we undertook to make a separate peace."

There is no stronger argument against the Knox-Porter resolution than Senator Lodge's own.

House Building in China

All lumber for building in China is bought in the log. As soon as the logs begin to arrive the contractor tackles them with the sawyers. These men are paid piece rates which average about three cash or one-tenth of a cent per square foot of surface sawed. They average a better wage than a carpenter, getting about 10 cents a day for the carpenter. At this rate they are cheaper than any steam saw mill that can operate in China. In fact, the only reason a saw mill can operate in China at all is because it can produce quickly and with a more even thickness than the native sawyers. The necessary doors, frames and window sashes are all made by hand. Three Chinese carpenters at 8 cents a day with their native tools can accomplish about the same work done by one American carpenter with all equipment. The work is well done if well supervised. The American carpenter has all his wood surfaced, so the Chinese carpenter is at a disadvantage. In comparison, I should say that about five Chinese carpenters at 8 cents a day each are necessary to do the work of an American carpenter who receives $6 a day and has all his wood prepared for him.—H. K. Richardson in Asia.

Serviceable to Papa.

A Red Cross public health nurse in a southern town has found the latest novelty in names for babies. She was weighing a little black youngster.

"What do you call your baby?" she asked the grinning young mother. "Weath-strip," replied the parent.

"Weather-strips," exclaimed the nurse. "What's the idea, Mandy?"

"We done named her Weath-strip 'cause she kept her papa outa de draft!"—American Red Cross Bulletin.

Now is the time to buy a stand pure lard 25c lb. $12.50 for 6 gal.—Walpole's Market.

The President's Opportunity.

That the House of Representatives will acquiesce in the Knox separate peace resolution may be taken for granted. That President Wilson will veto it may also be taken for granted. No other course is open to him.

The President, however, need not waste much time and attention on the resolution itself. The whole procedure is fantastic and unprecedented and at variance with the Constitution itself. The moral issue that is involved was clearly defined by Senator Lodge himself when he said, in December, 1916, that "it would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us if we undertook to make a separate peace." The fact that Senator Lodge has since joined the elements of dis honor and ruin in order to manufacture a partisan issue against the President does not lessen the impressiveness of his warning.

President Wilson will throw the Knox resolution into the waste basket, where it belongs, but in adopting it and in making it a party policy, the Republicans will have given him an opportunity to restate the case for the treaty which he cannot afford to neglect.

His last word on the subject, his telegram to the Oregon Democrats, is far from satisfactory. In that message the President declared it imperative that the Democratic party should "endorse and support the Versailles treaty and condemn the Lodge reservations as utterly inconsistent with the nation's honor and destructive of the world leadership which it has established, and which all the free peoples of the earth, including the great Powers themselves had shown themselves ready to welcome."

The Labor Problems.
"We believe that any man who is willing to work has a right to a steady job, fair hours and a living wages. We believe that strikes are not a disease, but a symptom of disease; and we believe that the time to observe and improve the relations between employer and worker is not while strikes are going on, but in the periods between them. We believe that nothing is gained by imagining that radicalism, under any of its names, is the cause of industrial unrest. It is not a cause, but an effect. The recent railroad yard men's strike showed what damage could be done to personal freedom and public safety by a group of workmen who tried to paralyze the railroads of America. We may expect, unless all Americans unite to find and apply the remedy, many other disturbances. The entire public depends on the service, for example, of railroad workers, of miners, of policemen, of mail carriers and of teachers. American democracy was intended to remove classes, not to create them and set them in opposition to each other. To each political party, to every candidate for office, to the men and women who support their candidacies, the labor question now presents itself as one that can no longer be twisted into any shape dictated by party or local expediency. Colliers'.

We Say Amen!

A great and successful farmer who had been farming for seventy years, when asked what was the greatest farming lesson he had learned, replied: "The lesson that good farming pays better than any other business in the world; pays not only in money, but in health and contentment of mind. It is one business in which a man can live the Golden Rule every day, in all his dealings; and the longer he lives the more his satisfaction with it grows; and at the sunset of life he can look back over the years without a single regret, knowing that they have been well spent and that he has contributed his best to the sum of human happiness and lived closest to the Scriptural injunction as to how a man should live."—The Oregon (Illinoian) Republican.

Going Bail For Johnson.

Hiram Johnson is the only Republican contender for the presidential nomination who is suspected of a purpose to bolt if conditions at Chicago in June do not prove agreeable to him.

One reason why the Senator is looked upon in this curious way is that he has a record. In 1912 he not only bolted but he accepted a nomination for Vice President from a party which denounced Republicans as "tools of corrupt interests enthroned in invisible government" who had "deliberately betrayed the trust" of the people. Another reason is found in the fact that some of his most ardent supporters, like Senator Borah and William R. Hearst, do not hesitate to suggest some such stratagem in this year of grace.

It will pain Americans who admire independence in politics, therefore, to learn that Mr. Johnson's Eastern managers have announced their willingness to go bail for him. The guarantee is regularity. He is a thick-and-thin party man. The hosts at the national convention may slay him, but he will applaud them with his last breath. He is making all this trouble for the organization because he loves it, and even in the face of ingratitude he will remain true.

This is fine from a partisan point of view, but where does it leave the Senator? If he can convince his fellow Republicans that he is as dependable as Gen. Wood, Senator Harding or Gov. Lowden, he will deprive the managers of their strongest incentive to deal generously with him. A Hiram Johnson who stands without hitching is not greatly to be greatly to be feared by the standpatters, with whom that is a habit.—Post-Dispatch.

The Labor Problems.

We believe that any man who is willing to work has a right to a steady job, fair hours and a living wages. We believe that strikes are not a disease, but a symptom of disease; and we believe that the time to observe and improve the relations between employer and worker is not while strikes are going on, but in the periods between them. We believe that nothing is gained by imagining that radicalism, under any of its names, is the cause of industrial unrest. It is not a cause, but an effect. The recent railroad yard men's strike showed what damage could be done to personal freedom and public safety by a group of workmen who tried to paralyze the railroads of America. We may expect, unless all Americans unite to find and apply the remedy, many other disturbances. The entire public depends on the service, for example, of railroad workers, of miners, of policemen, of mail carriers and of teachers. American democracy was intended to remove classes, not to create them and set them in opposition to each other. To each political party, to every candidate for office, to the men and women who support their candidacies, the labor question now presents itself as one that can no longer be twisted into any shape dictated by party or local expediency. When some illustrious person dies, flags are lowered to half-mast. If the average man in the street was interrogated for an explanation he would probably say it was just the usual custom. However, there is a distinct meaning in this, for the space above is left for the flag of the Angel of Death.

Again, a ship is invariably spoken of as of the feminine gender; this is due to the ancient Greeks, who called all ships feminine names out of respect to Athene, Goddess of the Sea.

Friday is believed to be an unlucky day by those who are superstitious. It is derived from the fact that it was the day of Our Lord's Crucifixion, as well as the one on which Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit.

Few, perhaps, are aware why a weather-cock is frequently attached to a church steeple. This is believed to be the day of Our Lord's Crucifixion, as well as the one on which Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit.

Journalists are spoken of as "members of the Fourth Estate." Burke is generally credited as being the originator of the phrase, for while addressing Parliament one day he said there were three branches of government, the king, the house of lords, and the house of commons, the Three Estates; but, turning around to the reporters' gallery, he added, "There sits the Fourth Estate, far more important than the others."

The barber's pole has also a curious history. In other times barbers were also surgeons, and practiced the art of phlebotomy, and a pole was given to the patient to hold in his hand in order to let the blood run more freely. The pole should have a line of blue paint, one of red, and one of white, winding round its length, blue representing the blood in the veins, red the blood in the arteries and white the bandages.

The nick in a coat has been a puzzler to many. It is said to date back to the time of Napoleon. A general named Moreau had many followers, but they were afraid to openly express sympathy with him. It was therefore agreed to put a nick on their coats as a secret sign. The letter M can be seen in the lapel representing the initial letter of the General's name.

Jean disappeared and was not seen for a few minutes. Then she entered the room again, looking very woe-begone and holding her head in both hands.

"Why, what is the matter, Jean?" asked Mrs. Santisteban. "I'm sick," replied the tot.

"Where do you feel sick?" asked the mother in alarm.

"Why, I guess I'm sick in the bargain," answered Jean.—Indianapolis News.

WHY THE PREACHER IS "MEAT" FOR "CON" MEN

Members of His Flock Are Prone to Follow His Leadership in Financial Investments.

"Sell some to a preacher first." Just why this should be heavily underscored as one of the most important steps in the campaign of the young stock salesman, known a generation or so ago as a "green goods man," will not be immediately apparent to the uninitiated.

Is not the minister one of the most poorly paid of our quasi-public servants? Has he not, therefore, but little money to invest?

"Quite so," would say the handbook on "How to Get Rich on Phony Stock," were not this line of instruction always dispensed verbally instead of by printed page.

"Quite so. The preacher gets a little pay, and has still less to invest. Nevertheless, sell him some, even if only a few shares."

"But why, Oh Wise Instructor, should I waste time selling these few shares when I might be selling many?"

"Because forsooth, Oh Earnest Pupil, you will sell many a big lot by being able to tell people that their preacher has bought a few."

"But why should people care what stock their preacher has bought? His studies are all of the spiritual, his activities in promoting the moral. Why should anyone imagine that his minister is Judge of an investment?"

"They should not, but they do, Oh Pupil. Tell a man to ask his garage man what is the matter with his car and he will do so after he has made it worse by his own tinkering. Tell a man to get a plumber to fix his drains, and he will do so."

Tell a man to ask a banker whether a stock is sound, and he will not; no, not even after he has been many times stung. But tell him that his preacher has bought your stock and he will do likewise."

That this old, old formula of the "green goods man," the "confidence man," and the "phony stock salesman" is still producing satisfactory results is apparent from the recent appearance in a religious organ of the alleged experience of a minister who acquired himself an automobile and a comfortable capital reserve by "stock investments."

One single line in the alleged experience of the minister noted was enough to exhibit the cloven hoof. "I could not even make payments on the Liberty Bonds for which I subscribed." This is the most overworked part of the vocabulary of the worthless stock specialist. "Don't buy Liberty Bonds," he says. "They pay you only 4% per cent. My securities will pay you 500 per cent." The only difference between this statement and the facts being that the Liberty Bonds will return you exactly 100 cents of value when the time comes for the government to redeem them, while the promoter's offerings most likely will represent 100 per cent loss long before that time.

For the minister, as for the professional man in other lines and the business man whose own organization requires all his time to supervise, there is but one investment which does not demand extensive investigation before purchase.

This is the government bond, whose security is undoubted, whose interest return is certain, and which can always be converted instantly into cash.

PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN

Works Well in Buying United States Treasury Savings Certificates.

The partial payment plan of buying Treasury Savings Certificates in St. Louis is catching on quickly. A few days ago J. H. Anderson, director of the Metropolitan Department, attended a noonday meeting of the employees of the D'Arcy Advertising Company, and made a brief talk. Seven of the employees subscribed for bonds, totaling $900.

They agreed to pay $5 per month on the certificates, the seven clerks buying through five different banks.

The contract is that they pay the amount the certificates are worth on the month of final payment, at which time the bank will turn over the certificate and open a savings account in the bank with a credit of one dollar.

WILTON'S GOOD RECORD.

New Hampshire Town Makes Big Showing in Government Securities.

Wilton, New Hampshire, has hung up a record for community Thrift in the last seven months which sets a mark for every larger town and city in the United States to work for. Wilton has 1,490 inhabitants, but the postmaster of the town has sold government savings certificates in excess of $8,000, maturity value, in that time.

The men, women and children placed $2,945.83 of their money in War Savings Stamps and $7,772.83 in Treasury Savings Certificates. This is an average of $1.98 for each inhabitant in W. S. S. and $3.24 in Treasury Savings Certificates, or a grand average of $5.22 per capita. The inhabitants of the town expect to continue that ratio of investment throughout this year.

Some men still wait for their sailing ship to come in; others prepare, by steady saving and safe investment in Government Savings Securities, a steamship which will get back on time.

A special election in St. Louis on a bond issue providing a total of $24,000,000.00 for 18 projected improvements resulted in the carrying of only five proposals, providing $3,725,000.00.

The State Board of Agriculture predicts that the yield of wheat in Missouri will be less this year than half the yield last year, due to decreased acreage and unfavorable conditions.

The Howell County Court has rejected three bids for the construction of a 50-mile road project because the lowest bid was nine per cent higher than the engineer's estimate. Prices asked ranged from $62,000.00 to $68,100.00.

A proposition made to Mountain Grove for the construction of a dehydrating plant for drying fruits and vegetables was turned down because it required the financing of a $150,000.00 stock company by the citizens of the town.

An Open Shop Association has been formed by 250 business firms of Joplin, for the purpose of improving labor conditions and preventing strikes, lockouts, boycotts and other labor troubles. The plan is to pay fair wages and provide good working conditions, but to refuse to deal with union business agents and strike agitators.

In Kansas City the high cost of union business agents is being complained of by some of the most aggressive union workers. Following the granting of increased wages in all the building crafts on May 1st, it developed that business agents are being allowed liberal toll on the increase. The business agent for the building laborers has been granted a weekly salary of $50.00, with a motor car and its upkeep supplied free. The hoisting engineers' business agent, with car and upkeep also supplied, is to have $65.00 a week, while the agent of the Building Trades Council is to get his car and $75 a week.

A factory to manufacture molasses feed will be established at Rich Hill by a local company. A building formerly occupied by a smelter has been purchased to be used as a factory. An addition to the power plant of the St. Joseph Lead Company of Bonne Terre is being constructed. It will increase the output from 6,000 K. W. H. to 11,000. The power plant is located at Rivermines.

A sorghum manufacturing company has been organized at West Plains and is making contracts with farmers for a large supply of cane.

Business men of Quincy, Ill., are advertising in the newspapers that they have determined to operate on the Open Shop plan. The advertisement is signed by 208 firms. The Open Shop Plan also has been adopted by the Operative Builders' Association of Philadelphia and the business men of York, Pa. The Open Shop movement is spreading rapidly.

Detailed reports received by the Associated Industries of Missouri indicate that there is a shortage of farm labor in Missouri amounting to probably 30,000 men. In many cases farmers needing help have found themselves unable to pay the high wages demanded by farm hands and have decided to cut their acreage of cultivated crops. They are also making use of improved machinery as much as possible.

The indications, however, are that unless additional labor is obtained, there will be a reduction in the food supply and the cost of living will go still higher. The situation could be helped by a continuation of the war edict of back yard gardens. Help also would be afforded if the college and high school students and professional men would spend their vacations working on farms. School children who need more money also might find it profitable to spend the summer months in agricultural labor.

MISSOURI AMONG STATES SUFFERING HEAVY IN WAR

St. Louis, May 21.—Men from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, comprising District No. 9 of the United States Public Health Service, suffered 10 per cent of the 200,000 casualties in the army section of the A. E. F., and including the men of the Marine Corps and navy from this district there were about 35,000 casualties during the war among men of these four states. This was the statement of Major L. H. Bahrenberg before the members' conference luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at the American Annex.

Maj. Bahrenberg is in charge of the two hospitals of the Public Health Service in St. Louis. He advocated making this city the chief hospital center of his service in this district by building a large modern hospital, doing away with the old Marine Hospital and returning the one at 5800 Arsenal street to the city for its original purpose as an infirmary. There are 30 admissions a day to the two hospitals, he said, and the one on Arsenal street has an average of 475 patients.

He said St. Louis would make as good a place as any in several Western states for a tuberculosis hospital for most cases.
